Do This Right Now

#	STEP
1.	Use the 7-section one-page template.
2.	Document reality, not aspiration.
3.	Use 'must' for required, 'should' rarely.
4.	Include a no-blame incident reporting clause.
5.	Have every employee sign — leadership first.
6.	Post and reference visibly.
7.	Review annually; update after incidents.
8.	Add an AI usage section by 2026.

Why This Matters

- Written policy turns 'we should do this' into 'this is required.' It's the difference between intent and accountability. Insurance carriers,...
- Many large customers now include cybersecurity clauses in vendor contracts. A written policy lets you answer 'yes' confidently — and
- When an incident happens, having a documented baseline of practices matters legally. 'We had a policy and an employee violated it'
